

Leaders Discuss Tax Rise

The Hearings on Home Front Economic Affairs Have Begun

WASHINGTON, July 24.—(P)—President Truman discussed with congressional leaders today the advisability of an immediate, emergency tax increase on both individual incomes and business firms.

House Speaker Rayburn (D-Tex.) told reporters after the White House conference that the matter was "still in the conversation stage."

But in any case a long-range tax bill, possibly including an excess profits tax, is likely to be taken up later in the year or early next year, Rayburn said.

Rayburn said the idea of an immediate, emergency tax rise would be discussed by Secretary of the Treasury Snyder and the chairman of the appropriate Senate and House committees in the near future.

He said such "interim" legislation, as he called it, would be intended to take up "some of the immediate slack" in government financing arising from the proposed huge increase in military spending.

Rayburn mentioned no figure in talking of the possible emergency bill.

At the capitol, hearings began on the administration's general home front economic program.

Fight on Inflation
To the Senate Banking committee, W. Stuart Symington described this program as aimed to "take the profiteering out of war."

Symington is chairman of the National Security Resources Board which has the job of planning for production, home front controls and civil defense in event of war.

The administration's five-point controls bill does not involve retail price controls at the civilian level, or controls over manpower. But Symington told Senators these things are under consideration and may be asked later if needed.

He noted that "prices of 28 basic commodities have risen 10 per cent since the invasion of South Korea" and added:

"The controls provided in this bill are essential to reduce these inflationary pressures."

Symington said President Truman hoped to avoid setting up a series of new special agencies to carry on the war effort. That was done in both World Wars I and II.

This time, he said, existing government agencies and departments will be expected to carry the load.

Symington also said there would be an "exceptional basis" to avoid the "piecemeal basis" of emergency measures used in World War II.

"Manpower shortage in this emergency will be more pressing than ever before," he said, adding that the bill would be expected to carry the load.

To Tighten up On Espionage

President Calls on FBI in Strict Enforcement

WASHINGTON, July 24.—(P)—President Truman today ordered the Federal Bureau of Investigation to tighten its enforcement program against "espionage, sabotage and subversive activities." He called on citizens to give the FBI all possible help.

In a statement, Mr. Truman said he has asked all law officers, both federal and state, to report information on spying, sabotage and subversion to the FBI where it can be "sifted out and correlated."

He added: "I suggest that all patriotic organizations and individuals likewise report all such information relating to espionage, sabotage and subversive activities to the Federal Bureau of Investigation in this manner."

Any information which is picked up should be reported promptly to the nearest FBI field representative, the President said.

Camp Breckenridge To be Reopened

WASHINGTON, July 24.—(P)—The army today announced it will reopen Camp Breckenridge, Ky., as a replacement training center.

It said the camp would start receiving recruits about mid-September and could reach its training capacity of 22,000 men by October 1.

Breckenridge is the second training center to be reopened since the start of the Korean war. Camp Jackson, near Columbia, S. C., was reactivated about 10 days ago.

The two camps are given training programs at the four regular army training centers. These are Fort Ord, Calif.; Fort Benning, Ga.; Fort Belvoir, Ill.; and Fort Belvoir, Mo.

Red Cross Asks North Korea Entry
GENEVA, Switzerland, July 24.—(P)—A representative of the International Red Cross committee has left for Hong Kong, hoping to be admitted to North Korea, the committee disclosed today.

The official, Jean Courvoisier, was formerly Red Cross observer in the Arab-Jewish fighting in Palestine.

The International Red Cross committee had written to the North Korean government requesting permission for him to represent the committee with the North Korean army. A Red Cross representative has been accredited to the South Korean army since the beginning of the war.

No reply has been received yet from North Korea to the committee's request.

Atlantic Pact Nations Will Speed Defense

Five Point Plan For Combat on Communism

By Arthur Gavshon

LONDON, July 24.—(P)—The 12 Atlantic Pact nations—spurred by the crisis in Korea—got to work today on a five-point program aimed at bolstering their defenses against Communism in the west.

The urgent need for quick action was stressed by America's Charles M. Spofford, who is expected to serve as permanent chairman of the New Atlantic pact council, a sort of civilian high command.

Spofford, who flew here from Washington for the council's first meeting tomorrow, told reporters: "The mission of the council meeting will be to speed the North Atlantic defense program along the lines of the President's message regarding the urgency of North Atlantic defense at the present time."

The council, created last May by the foreign ministers of the 12 pact nations at their London meeting, has the following tasks:

1. To create a balanced collective force based in Europe, with each country specializing in particular types of forces so as to prevent costly duplications.

2. To set up mobile reserve forces which can be dispatched to any trouble spot in the west's defense chain.

3. Partial mobilization of industry for war production.

4. To lay down a master plan of armament fitted to the strategic defense plan outlined by the chiefs of staff.

5. To see that the pact partners carry out their assignments after they have accepted them.

Meeting with Spofford on the council will be deputies of the foreign ministers of the 11 other pact nations—Britain, France, Italy, Holland, Belgium, Luxembourg, Portugal, Norway, Denmark, Iceland and Canada.

Spofford is said to have instructions from Washington to urge the other pact members to pay out more for defense needs. Reports from the U. S. capital say President Truman is prepared to ask Congress for a new $5,000,000 arms aid program for western Europe.

Some Atlantic Pact members, torn between a desire for security and the need for patching up their torn economies, are reported unwilling to shoulder any heavier military burdens at this point.

Girl Falling Out Of Auto Safe

WARRENSBURG, Mo., July 24.—(P)—Eighteen-year-old Joyce Harms turned up safe at her farm home near Cornelia, Mo., yesterday, after being hunted by her parents, friends, neighbors and authorities for 12 hours.

Miss Harms fell from her parents' automobile during a dense fog early yesterday morning. The parents were unable to find the girl along the roadway. Authorities were notified and the search began.

The girl showed up at home yesterday afternoon. She said she had spent the night in a park at Cornelia and was walking home when a motorist picked her up.

Two Killed by A Truck-Trailer
ALBANY, Mo., July 24.—(P)—Two persons were killed yesterday when the trailer of a big truck broke loose from the truck and smashed into a family car. The accident occurred on state highway 4, five miles east of Albany.

Killed were Lloyd W. Bauer, 36, Beatrice, Neb., and his daughter, Patty 6.

Mrs. Bauer, 32, a daughter, Carol, 3, and a son, Thomas, 16, months, were injured.

Sheriff Everett Bowman said the truck was driven by John J. Riley, Memphis, Tenn.

The injured were hospitalized at Bethany, Mo.

Shift be Made In House Seats

Missouri Due to Lose One; Eight Gain to California

WASHINGTON, July 24.—(P)—The population of the United States has risen almost 19,000,000 in the past 10 years to a 1950 total officially estimated at 150,250,000.

While the final totals will be ready by next December 1, they will not become known until later that month, when President Truman submits them to Congress. It will be up to the lawmakers to decide then how many house members each state will have on the basis of the new figures.

Reckoned roughly, each congressional district will have 344,000 inhabitants, compared with the 301,000 figure set in 1940, when the nation's population numbered 131,669,275.

California will be the big gainer in the house, although it is not yet certain by how many seats.

A. Ross Eckler, deputy director of the census bureau, told reporters in releasing the figures over the weekend that the best rule of thumb for determining the future apportionment of house members lies in a set of figures made public by the house postoffice committee, two years ago.

At that time, California was expected to gain eight representatives and the following states one each: Florida, Indiana, Michigan, Oregon, Texas and Washington.

New York was slated on the basis of the 1943 estimate to lose three seats, Pennsylvania two, and these states one apiece: Arkansas, Georgia, Illinois, Kentucky, Mississippi, Missouri, North Carolina, Oklahoma and Tennessee.

Five states—Arkansas, Mississippi, Nebraska, North Dakota and Oklahoma—lost population over the 10-year period by percentages varying from four per cent for North Dakota to 3 per cent for Oklahoma.

Has 11,500 in Britain of Navy and Air Force
LONDON, July 24.—(P)—The United States now has 11,500 members of its navy and air force stationed in Britain.

Prime Minister Attlee furnished the figure in the House of Commons today in reply to a question by Laborite S. O. Davies.

Attlee said it included 10,000 air force men in three B-29 groups with a total of about 180 aircraft. The Navy has 1,500 men stationed here.

Further Aggression Might Bring World War Three

By DeWitt MacKenzie

AP Foreign Affairs Analyst
The danger of Communist action in the Balkans, involving Greece, naturally leads to the question of whether the world would be plunged into a world war if such aggression could lead to a world war. However, the President didn't say it inevitably would lead to another general war. He said, "I don't believe I shall not attempt to predict the course of events. But I am sure that those who have it in their power to unleash or withhold acts of aggression must realize that new aggression to aggression in the world today might well strain to the breaking point the fabric of world peace."

What could be clearer than that? Such aggression could lead to a world war. However, the President didn't say it inevitably would lead to another general war. He said, "I don't believe I shall not attempt to predict the course of events. But I am

Reds Intensify Their Attacks But Are Still Being 'Repulsed'

Capture Two Barefoot Soldiers

An Advanced Command Post in Korea, July 24.—(P)—South Korean troops today captured two barefoot North Korean soldiers in filthy mustard-colored uniforms. One captive is 19, the other 31. They were foraging for food. The North Korean army is living off the country—but not well.

American air strikes have undercut northern morale—except for the Korean labor party (Communist) members who still are riding a high emotional vag.

The soldiers' big gripe: The pay is 15 won monthly (almost one cent).

Korean Situation At a Glance
By the Associated Press

Korean Fronts: Americans stop tank-led assaults in two Separate sectors of central front. Communists take Kwangju in southwest sector and wheel for possible drive across southern end of peninsula. Reds reported building up "considerable strength" in center, west and south west.

Air War: Clear weather lets planes give heavy support to ground troops. B-29s hit behind lines, dumping bombs on bridges and other strategic targets.

Washington: Congress leaders seek appraisal of U. S. military strength as speculation centers on whether a halted Communist drive in Korea would bring new Soviet diplomatic moves.

Thirty-four in C-36 Transport Die in Crash
Exploded, Making A Blazing Pyre For Guardsmen

MYRTLE BEACH, S. C., July 24.—(P)—An air force transport hurtled into swampland near here yesterday and exploded into a blazing funeral pyre for 34 servicemen.

The dead included 30 members of the Tennessee air national guard, en route to Nashville for war games in this area. Four air reserve crewmen were on the plane.

Minutes after the C-46 climber plunged into the pine-spotted swampland, the servicemen were still within sight of the airport until just before the ship crashed.

Towering, gasoline-fed flames pushed would-be rescuers back. Helpless, they watched the cremation. When the flames died, white-jacketed army medical corpsmen began removing the bodies. Late last night, they had recovered 15. The others were trapped in buried, charred wreckage.

Parts Over Wide Circle
Bits of the big transport were flung in a 100-yard circle. The wings were still further away.

There were conflicting reports about the crash. Some said the plane seemed to explode in mid-air. But a pilot who flew over the Carolina swampland said the ship didn't blow up until it struck.

The Nashville guardsmen were members of the 105th fighter squadron, a part of the 118th fighter group. Along with air national guardsmen from several other states, the Nashville squadron had been participating for two weeks in maneuvers at this South Carolina coastal resort.

Nine transports from the Miami reserve wing flew to Myrtle beach Saturday to take guardsmen home.

Soon After Take-off
The doomed ship took off about 10:30 o'clock this morning and headed for Nashville. About half way to Conway, fourteen miles northwest of here, it plummeted to earth.

"I heard the plane," said one unidentified witness. "It sounded like it was trying to take off. Then I heard a roar and saw the flames shoot up."

Six ambulances from Conway and Myrtle Beach rushed to the area, not far from the main road between the two cities. More than seventy-five men from the airfield here, aided by half a dozen coast guard and three civilian fire engines fought the blaze with water and chemicals.

Threat by Red Infantry Behind The Lines is Soon 'Cleaned up'

TOKYO, Tuesday, July 25.—(P)—The North Korean Communist radio said today Red units have captured Mokpo, a southwestern Korean port, and Namwon, 30 miles southeast of Chongju.

A release from General MacArthur's headquarters placed Communists in the vicinity of two towns but indicated the points were still held by South Koreans.

TOKYO, Tuesday, July 25.—(P)—North Korean invaders were attacking Monday all along a 150-mile front from Taejon eastward to the coastal town of Yongdok, but "continued to be repulsed" by American and South Korean defenders, General MacArthur's headquarters reported early today.

Field dispatches described two hard assaults on separate American defense lines deep along back roads in rugged south-central Korea.

A third Red column had withered down the west coast of Kwangju, near the southwest tip of Korea in a broad flanking threat.

Dispatches from the front late Monday night said Red pressure mounted steadily all day against American lines astride the Taejon-Yongdok highway, while 20 to 30 miles northeast another drive was in progress, pronging out along three roads.

On the Yongdok front AP correspondent Hal Boyle reported Red infantry at one time got behind advanced American positions and threw up a mortar-backed road block.

This serious threat was cleaned out in two hours with the aid of American tanks and artillery, Boyle reported.

"We didn't fool with it; we sent the tanks to clean it up," he quoted an artillery commander.

Three-Speared Attack
North and northeast of Yongdok, a force identified as the North Korean Second Infantry Division pushed its three-spear attack on other American positions.

One second-division column reached Poun, 22 miles north of Yongdok and 35 miles northwest of the rail-highway hub of Kumchon.

American planes and ground troops were credited with knocking out five of the tight tanks leading about 700 Red infantrymen near Poun.

The two other columns of the Red Second Division were reported 15 miles and 20 miles northeast of Poun on two rugged mountain trails that wind southward west of the town of Hamchang.

General MacArthur's press release early Tuesday also said a South Korean division withdrew from Yongju—30 miles farther northeast of Hamchang—to "more tenable positions" two miles south of Yongju.

Outline of Front Line
MacArthur's release outlined the front as running generally from west to east as follows:

Bakery Strike Still in Effect
The twenty-eight union bakers and helpers of the Taystee bakery are still out on strike today and the picket lines in front of the plant building at Prospect avenue and Main street are still moving.

According to Omar Simon, secretary-treasurer of the local and chairman of the negotiating committee efforts have been made to reach some agreement, but nothing definite has been decided. The union workers are asking for a ten cent hourly increase, which would raise their wages from $51.80 to $55.80, a jump of $4.00 per week. Simon added that there will be a meeting with company officials Wednesday.

The plant is at a standstill and no agreement has been reached according to Manager Elmer Dillard.

Gilbert V. Jones, secretary of the Retail Grocers Association, said this morning that there "is plenty of bread for the public." He added that the other bakeries in the state were taking care of the demands here adequately.

Shoe Company Increases Prices on Shoes
ST. LOUIS, July 24.—(P)—The International Shoe company has raised prices on all types of shoes effective today.

The increase on women's and children's shoes are up about 10 cents a pair. Men's shoes will sell about 20 cents a pair higher.

Higher costs for raw materials caused by the price increase, Edgar E. Rand, company president, said.

Christopher to Campaign County
Congressman George M. Christopher, representative of the Sixth Congressional District of Missouri, is coming to Sedalia on Wednesday for a hurried campaign of the county. Congressman Christopher will speak at a meeting to be held in the Assembly Room of the court house at 8:00 o'clock Wednesday night.

Because Congress has been pressed with business especially over the Korean war, Congressman Christopher has been unable to campaign extensively over the eleven counties of the district. He arrived back in Missouri the past week and is endeavoring to make as many contacts with the voters as possible.

He is a candidate for the Democratic nomination for re-election. Congressman Christopher was elected in 1948 to his first term of two years.

Strength to The Marines Be Added

WASHINGTON, July 24.—(P)—Congressional sources said today an immediate 80 per cent increase is planned in the fighting strength of the Marine Corps.

They also said the Navy is readying an additional two—and possibly three—aircraft carriers for duty as quickly as possible.

House members, whose names cannot be used, told of these Navy mobilization plans after a closed-door session of the House Armed Services committee with Admiral Forrest P. Sherman, chief of naval operations.

Sherman was reported to have told the committee that an increase of about 57,000 men would be made in the fighting strength of the Marines.

As of June 30, the Marines were reported to have approximately 75,000 men.

Part of the Marines' added strength would be in its aviation squadrons, which would be increased from the present 13 to 18 squadrons.

The House group heard Sherman as part of a general inquiry into the state of American preparedness.

Blight Infects Tomato Vines

Best Methods On Control Given By County Agent

"What is causing the leaves of my tomato vines to turn brown and drop off?" This is another question coming to the County Extension Office.

There are four or five diseases known to affect tomatoes—Fusarium wilt, Septoria Leaf-spot, Mosaic, blossom-end rot and late blight.

The Fusarium wilt is the old common wilt which causes trouble where non resistant wilt tomatoes are grown. The start of the disease is indicated first by a rolling of the leaves followed by wilting and yellowing. This finally affects the stems by breaking down and obstructing the conducting tubes shutting off the water supply. Brown discolored streaks will be noted in the stem when split open. Spraying is not effective.

Septoria leaf spot sometimes called blight often gives trouble in rainy seasons. The disease affects the lower leaves first, causing small gray spots with black borders to appear, followed by drying and dropping of the leaf. Now the remedy is spraying with a 3-4-50 Bordeaux mixture at intervals of 10 days or 2 weeks.

Mosaic is a virus disease characterized by crinkled mottled areas of light and dark green on the leaves. Infected plants should be removed and destroyed, as the disease is easily spread by insects, pruning tools, or by handling infected plants.

Blossom-end rot affects the green fruit, causing sunken, discolored spots on the blossom end. Proper soil moisture and an abundance of organic matter in the soil aid materially.

The late blight is not so common. The first symptoms are irregular greenish-black, water soaked patches on the older leaves. These spots enlarge rapidly and in moist weather sometimes show a white, downy growth of the fungus on the lower leaves. If this is present the recommendations are to spray every ten days with 4 pounds of metallic copper in 100 gallons of water. Better results are secured if applied at 200 to 300 pounds pressure. The top and bottom sides of the leaves should be well covered with the spray material.

The Extension Agent is of the opinion, based on some observations and descriptions of those reporting that now the main cause of the immediate trouble in from the Septoria Leaf-Spot. Perhaps most any of the commercial Bordeaux sprays will be effective if used about every 10 days. To help control loss from this you should also clean up and burn old vines and leaves after each crop, and plow deeply in the fall and use crop rotation.

Training Meeting Be Held at Park

All Pettis County 4-Hers, their parents and leaders are invited to attend the Annual Demonstration Training meeting and picnic Tuesday evening, July 25, at Convention Hall. The meeting will start with a picnic supper on the porch at Convention Hall at 7 p. m. For those arriving early, games will be in progress prior to the picnic. Following the picnic supper, the group will gather inside the Hall for the program.

Four Demonstrations, two agricultural and two home economics, will be given by Pettis County 4-Hers. These demonstrations will be evaluated by a judge who will also give constructive criticism for the purpose of giving training to those present.

Following the program all 4-Hers present will take part in a candle lighting ceremony on the lawn of the hall. This ceremony is both beautiful and impressive.

All families attending should bring their own eating utensils for the picnic.

Tom Ream Has Good Wheat Yield

Last week the Extension Agent reported on the 34.7 bushel yield of wheat produced on the S. B. Miller farm from a 9.5 acre field. Mr. Miller applied 200 lbs. 6-18-6 fertilizer last fall and 100 lbs. ammonium nitrate this spring.

Tom Ream north end east of Sedalia, combined 876 bushels of wheat from 27.15 acres of 32.5 bushels per acre. Mr. Ream applied 260 lbs. 4-12-4 fertilizer per acre on this field in 1948 and harvested 72 bushels of oats per acre. He seeded alsike clover on the field in the spring of 1948. He harvested a clover seed crop last year and pastured the clover. The fertilizer application with the Vigo wheat was 150 lbs. 4-12-4. A good stand of spring seeded sweet clover is now coming on for fall pasture, if needed, and a green manure crop that will be plowed under for corn in 1951. This is an instance of field yields resulting from a good cropping

Natural Shade Is Best For Pigs

Experiments have shown that hogs up to about 150 lbs. make their cheapest gains when the temperature is about 75 degrees. Big hogs—over 150 lbs. do best when the temperature is kept down to about 60 degrees.

E. S. Mattheson, extension animal husbandman at Missouri University, says that your pigs will do best if they have natural shade—but he says any kind of shade you can rig up is better than none.

Some balanced farming members in Pettis County plan three areas to provide clean ground for their growing pigs until they weigh about 160 lbs. — and clean ground is not so important — move them into permanent pasture where they may be natural shade. This can be used year after year for the heavy hog.

A concrete wall—just a little water—will keep pigs comfortable and they'll make you more gains for less feed. Comfortable pigs cut your costs and keep profits up.

Plantings for Multiflora Rose

The planting of multiflora rose is approved practice No. 15 of the Pettis county ACP Handbook offering an assistance in the amount of $6.00 per 1000 plants used according to the specifications, reports Jas. A. Harvey, chairman of the local RMA Committee.

The planting and establishing a good stand of multiflora rose is recommended as a means of preventing erosion, for protection of service outlets, waterways, and penes, to provide for better distribution of grazing, or to assist in conservation farming. Plantings must be made in accordance with the following requirements: (1) A seed bed at least 8 feet in width must be cleared and thoroughly disked, plowed or cultivated. (2) A minimum of 200 pounds of 4-12-4 fertilizer (or equivalent) must be applied for each 1000 linear feet of seedbed and incorporated into the soil. (3) The plants shall be spaced not more than 12 inches apart. (4) Weeds will be controlled by cultivating regularly, or by mulching the entire site heavily with straw, old hay, or similar materials. (5) Plants must be protected from livestock until well established (two or three years).

The use of multiflora rose is becoming more popular each year as a permanent fence for sod waterways and around farm ponds and will satisfactorily turn stock after a good growth has been obtained. At the same time it offers a refuge, not provided otherwise, for wildlife on prairie farms. For this reason, as well as its contribution to preventing erosion, its use is being encouraged by the Missouri Conservation Commission.

A Boom in the Hardwood Veneers

NEW YORK — (P) — A record volume of 4,000,000,000 square feet of hardwood veneers is being produced this year to meet the expanding demand for fancy plywood. The Veneer Association reports that in addition to grain-finished veneers used for furniture, radio and television cabinets, the home building boom has developed an unusual demand for veneer paneling, flush type doors and built-in cabinets.

Hardwood veneer construction of interior walls has received a big boost in the popularity of ranch-type homes. Making larger panels possible, veneers of this type are being used widely for living-room fireplace walls and colonial style kitchen dining spaces as well as for dens and libraries.

The School's Sweetheart

SALTSBURG, Pa. — (P) — Ninny, Funel, 23 and pretty, is so busy with her studies at the Kiski Preparatory school she has hardly had time to notice she is the only girl in the student body.

Ninny, who only recently came to America from Italy, wants to brush up on her English so she can enter the University of Pittsburgh and become a teacher. Authorities granted her special permission to study English at Kiski. "I thought I would feel like a fish out of water among 167 boys," said Ninny, "but I found my time so full of study I didn't notice all the other students were boys."

Camp Trips For Two In 4-H Club

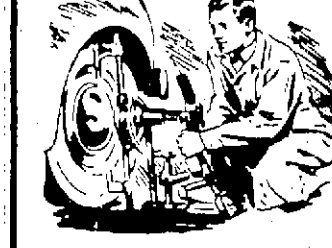

Two Pettis County 4-H members, Pat Moriarty and Lillian Barker, have been selected by the State 4-H Club Office as delegates to the State Conservation Camp and the State Health Camp respectively. Both of these camps are held at the Lake of the Ozarks, camping area 2-C from July 24-29.

The delegates, both members of Striped College 4-H Club, were selected on the basis of work carried on in the 4-H conservation and health activities. The Striped College club was named as one of the top 15 clubs in the state carrying out the health activity. Selections were made on the basis of health reports submitted by 4-H clubs.

Members of the Striped College 4-H club, under the direction of their leader, Mrs. Lester Patrick, are carrying out an outstanding health program. Among the activities being carried on by club members at the present time is a first aid course under the direction of the local Red Cross.

Last year members of this club planted wildlife bundles, put out food for birds and provided wildlife shelter as a part of their Wildlife Conservation activity.

Pat Moriarty is the president of the Striped College Club and is in his third year of club work.

Not Appointed If Found As Communist

Gen. Eisenhower Gives Ideas On Getting Teachers

By David Taylor Marke
AP Education Writer

NEW YORK, July 24 — (P) — Communists should not be allowed to teach in our universities, says Dwight D. Eisenhower, president of Columbia University.

"Before appointing a man to our faculty," the youthful-looking, vigorous general of the Army said in an interview, "I would want to know all there is to know about his background."

"If I found he was a Communist, I would not appoint him. On the other hand, I certainly do not believe our faculty members should be subject to special loyalty oaths."

Eisenhower, now rounding out his second year as president of the university, elaborated on this point.

"When we think of the education of our youth, we think of three institutions: the family, the church and the school. We don't ask for special oaths from the parents; we don't ask for special oaths from the minister; then why ask for a special loyalty oath from the teacher?"

Privately endowed universities, such as Columbia, he said, must never be allowed to pass out of the educational picture. They act as a check on public-supported institutions and help set standards and preserve balances sorely needed in a troubled world.

"Our standing institutions must remain the great educational, research and professional frontier," he said.

Mix With World

On the other hand: "I am strong for President (James) Conant's (of Harvard) idea that the terminal two-year college, supported by public taxes, be developed and expanded on a broad democratic base."

"Here, at Columbia," he continued, "one of my principal tasks has been to convince people to mix with the world. Professors must come out of their ivory towers to help solve the difficult economic, social and political problems of the day. These people possess some of the best brains in the country. I am trying to show them it is their duty to find the answers, based on logic and scholarship, in an atmosphere removed from prejudice, ignorance and political aspirations."

"The primary mission of a university today," said Eisenhower, "is the training of our future leaders. For this, we need practical men with scholarship and vision and initiative."

Several practical steps in this direction have been taken already, he said. "Under the able direction of President William F. Russell of Teachers College, we have inaugurated a 'citizenship education planning project' through which we are taking the initiative in helping communities to develop better citizens."

"Under Professor King, one of our leading nutrition experts, we have in the planning stages a nutrition center where teachers, economists, business men and statesmen can offer ideas on how to produce more food and how to get it distributed. I feel it is idle to talk of peace in terms of values we know when so many people are so hungry they will commit any crime to get enough to eat for themselves and their families."

"However, this type of center will require a very large sum of money. To do the job right would take about $15,000,000. This means we must wait until we can get the cooperation of many great men with vision and courage to help us get started."

"These, roughly, are two of the tasks we have set ourselves. In law, medicine, engineering, physics, the arts, we have professors helping to solve the problems of their professions on the practical level."

In addition, said Eisenhower, "I am deeply interested in the peace institute, which has enlisted tremendous support. We hope to have it under way by 1951."

"This is no ivory tower venture. Its purpose will be to study war as a tragic social phenomenon—its origins, its conduct, its impact and particularly its disastrous consequences upon man's spiritual, intellectual and material progress. No American university, I am told, has ever undertaken this comprehensive task."

But above all, concluded Eisenhower, is the challenge to the university: "to turn out men with a conviction that human freedom must be treasured beyond all else."

"We want to turn out individuals who have been inspired to live full lives as American citizens, good neighbors in every community task; who are sharply conscious that the great rights they possess are accompanied by inescapable obligations and that they can most surely preserve their own rights by defending the rights of others."

"If Columbia University can accomplish these things, it has accomplished its mission toward the free democracy of which it is a part."

Spanish Cognac Becomes 'Jerinae'

MADRID —(P)—The next time a drinking man swings up to a bar and asks for Spanish brandy he is expected to call it "Jerinae." That is the new and official name for the drink.

Complaints from at home and abroad caused Spain's wine and brandy producers to seek a new name for Spanish-made brandy. The French frequently called attention to their claim that real cognac comes only from the Cognac region of France.

So wine-makers started a contest, and 10,000 Spaniards responded. Six of them offered the winning title "Jerinae" to split the $400 prize. The word is coined from Jerez, the city which produces most Spanish sherry.

Podded Nut
Brazil nuts grow on giant trees, 75 to 150 feet tall, which flourish in the Amazon valley and practically no place else. The nuts are not actually nuts, but rather seeds, which grow in round pods similar to the coconut, about 30 nuts to each pod.

The President Needs More Help Not More Criticism in Crisis

By Drew Pearson

WASHINGTON—The other night on the radio, as I listened to President Truman telling the nation about the Korean war, I couldn't help comparing his broadcast to FDR's during the war. One gave you the impression of the master at the helm; the other of a sincere, somewhat inadequate little guy who was trying to do his best.

I have also been reading the "Letters From Readers" in the Washington newspapers of late, and noted the very large amount of misunderstanding, criticism, and opposition to war in Korea.

Perhaps the President read these letters too. Perhaps they helped induce him—three weeks late—to tell the American people about the fundamental issues of the war. In contrast, I recall that President Roosevelt went on the air immediately after Pearl Harbor and immediately after other grave crisis—because he knew that it was so all-important to keep the American people informed and to have their support.

Obviously, Truman must feel the same way; but he both forgets about it and lacks the polished touch and sure-fire know-how of his predecessor.

So I couldn't help thinking, as I listened to Truman's sincere, high-pitched, and somewhat belated explanation to the American people, that what more Americans need to do, instead of carping and criticizing, is to pitch in and help out.

Truman Needs Help

When FDR was in the White House, a lot of people complained that we were too centralized, that we got in the habit of leaving everything to the government, and that it was a bad thing to have a masterful man with a bewitching voice in the White House for such a long time. It destroyed our initiative, they claimed, prepared us for dictatorship.

I suspect that it's some of this same crowd who are now griping about Truman. However, the current crisis presents a situation where, if they are sincere, they can put their previous ideas to work.

In brief, Truman needs help and needs it badly. Whether he needs it because of his own inadequacies or because the country faces a serious emergency, is not worth arguing about. When a man is drowning, you don't stop to ask how he fell in the water. You pull him out.

I am glad to report that many Americans are now pulling first and asking questions afterward.

Take, for instance, the Junior Chamber of Commerce, a live-wire bunch of youngsters who saw service in the last war, and who know what it's all about. They have already started hatching a plan to help out their country—and Truman—in regard to one of the most vital of all problems: helping prospective soldiers to know what the shooting is all about.

The Jaycees are working on a plan whereby they would invite draftees and prospective enlisted men around to a smoker where they would tell the new soldiers something about their own experiences in the late war, give them a few tips on how to get ahead in the Army or Navy, and, above all, help them see the objectives behind the war—which can make this world a better place to live in.

The Jaycees mean business. And their approach makes sense.

International Police

Some of their leaders realize what some of the rest of us don't, that when the police blow a whistle, they don't then sit down in the police station and hold a debate as to whether or not they should catch the murderer. Hitherto, that's what the world has been doing every time a big nation starts murdering a small nation. For years, the League of Nations and all the other peace organizations just blew a whistle and then debated.

But now, for the first time in the history of man, they have done something. And that is a precedent which cannot be allowed to fail. That is the beginning of a police system which may really prevent war in the future. That is the most important thing to remember about the Korean war.

Kow War Starts

Another thing to remember, however, is that most people fail to understand when and where war begins.

If you asked the average person when our participation in World War II began he would tell you at Pearl Harbor. But that isn't true. Actually it began when the Japs warlords invaded Manchuria on Sept. 18, 1931—ten years before Pearl Harbor. At that time, Henry L. Stimson, then our secretary of state, clearly realized that this was the real beginning of a world war and moved heaven and earth to try to get the League of Nations to help to stop it. He failed.

No, wars seldom begin all at once. They begin in segments of wars that are gradually pieced together into a big war. This is because the aggressors have to build up their strength gradually; also, because they know they have to make war gradually, otherwise the peaceful, democratic peoples will get aroused and fight back.

After Manchuria, for instance, the Axis bit off Ethiopia. Then they had a full-scale rehearsal for war in Spain. Then Hitler began biting off more and more segments—Austria, the tip end of Czechoslovakia, then all of Czechoslovakia. Finally he was bold enough and strong enough to snoot the world and the works and risk total war in Poland.

Regarding World War III, historians undoubtedly will tell us that it really began when Russia grabbed off Rumania, Bulgaria, Poland, Hungary, and Czechoslovakia. This was called a cold war, but it remained cold only because the democratic, peace-loving world was too weary to fight.

Korea was just one of those segments. Actually it is not an isolated battlefield 8,000 miles away, but a part of the Kremlin's carefully laid scheme for segment war.

Sooner or later in this carefully plotted segment plan of warfare, the free nations had to come to the point where they could not retreat anymore. And I think Harry Truman deserves credit rather than blame when he recognized this fact. He could have waited for a Pearl Harbor, as FDR did. But the Kremlin, being a lot smarter than Hitler, probably would not have given us a Pearl Harbor until they were ready to make their blow so severe that it would have knocked us out altogether.

DR and HST

Mr. Truman happens to have given rather wide publicity to his views about me; so that wherever I go in any part of the world, folks seem to know of it and remind me of it. However, regardless of personal feelings, he's our president—my president. And if some people feel he isn't a strong president, then it's up to us to help him and make him a little stronger.

In brief, it's important for all of us to remember in this hour of crisis—including the writers of critical "Letters to the Editor"—that we can't abdicate our American citizenship.

And while I am not abdicating my right to point out Harry's mistakes, nevertheless, I hope in one or two future columns to make a small contribution as a citizen to Harry's tough job of keeping the American public informed as to some of the real issues behind this Korean crisis.

We Can't Stop Russians With Half-Hearted Effort

By Bruce Blossat

The government has wisely declared there will be no slackening of aid to western Europe as result of U. S. commitments in the Korean war.

Some members of Congress recently dropped hints that since we must now spend more in the Far East, we perhaps can spend less in Europe.

That's something like removing fire-fighting equipment from the western half of a city because the last couple of fires happened to occur in the eastern half.

The free world's defenses against Russian communism must be world wide. Any appreciable reduction in strength anywhere would plainly embolden the Soviet Union or its satellites to probe the soft spot as was done in South Korea.

Naturally some of those who advocate cutting down on aid to Europe are isolationists who seize upon any excuse to justify "economy" on that continent. But others are honestly concerned that it may be Russian purpose to spread us thin on a multitude of fronts, to bleed us white so we may be too weak ultimately to resist.

The danger here is real. Yet we have no alternative but to take the risk. Anything less than fully effective aid to the free world's trouble spots is probably worse than no aid at all; it would give an illusion of strength that doesn't exist.

There is evidence that even before the Korean war we were not committing ourselves heavily enough to the military defense of Europe, that the sums already voted by Congress or pending there are not much more than tokens of our intent.

As for the Far East, the Korean war itself is proof that our efforts to hold an Asiatic line against advancing communism were woefully short of the effective minimum.

The blunt truth is that the job is one of tremendous proportions. We are slow to get it through our heads that Russia is a far greater menace to us than was Hitler's Germany at the full tide of its power.

Up to now we have deluded ourselves that this combat with the Russians could be conducted conveniently and comfortably, at no large sacrifice in our relatively luxurious post-war pattern of living. Possibly, however, the loss of American lives in Korea will serve as a sharp and necessary corrective to our self-illusion.

John Foster Dulles said the other day that we must now be prepared for greater sacrifices. Having seen Russian intentions nakedly exposed in Korea, we should all recognize the magnitude of our task. To do it right means to spend billions more on all fronts. Aims: inevitably that will mean higher taxes, and perhaps fewer civilian goods available for our pleasure. If we are unwilling to face this prospect, then we are not truly ready to meet the Soviet Union's challenge.

No tyrant that ever stalked the earth could march Russia as a peril to freedom. Half-hearted measures are not the weapons to destroy such peril.

• So They Say

Communist and other totalitarian states believe in running affairs from the top down. In the United States . . . we are proving how superior it is to carry on our government from the grass roots upward.

—President Truman.

The world does not stand still. It is up to us whether we go forward or fall back, risking not only all the progress we have made but total failure.

—Secretary of State Dean Acheson.

There is no simple formula for peace and justice in a world divided against itself.

—Sen. Herbert Lehman (D.), N. Y.

Lucre 8:27—37; Acts 26:22—25; 1 Pet. 4:3—4,14

AFRAID OF SANITY!

A Church of England clergyman uttered a profound thing in one of our Round Table conferences: "I am trying to live the natural way of life—the Christian way. In 11 Peter 2:19 we read, 'Promising them freedom, when they are themselves enslaved to corruption.' Note that phrase—'enslaved to corruption,' given over to something that is decaying. Evil is just that—it is life under the doom of decay. The Christian way is life under the doom of development. Hence, the Christian way is the natural way."

It is true there is a false nature built up by our false living, but that false nature is not the real nature, that God stamped in us at creation. That false nature which a man attempts to build up is at war with the real nature. Hence, the man who sins is at war with himself as well as with God.

The new birth comes through the surrender and abandonment of this false world of evil and the acceptance to this true world of good. The man becomes "a little child"—he is realigned to God's original purpose. When he becomes God's man he really becomes a man.

We have become so naturalized in evil that we think the Christian way is the unnatural way. The people came and saw the demoniac, out of whom Jesus had cast the evil spirits, "clothed, and in his right mind; and they were afraid." Afraid of what?

They were afraid of sanity! We have become so accustomed to our insane ways of life that we are afraid of the real sanity of the Christian way. A man told me that he had ridden a bicycle with crooked handle bars for so long, that when some straightened them he fell off. He had become naturalized in crookedness! To us who are naturalized in this crooked and impossible order the realism of Jesus seems foolish; but it is realism so far ahead of us that to us it is idealism. In fact, it is realism.

Evil is the great illusion—it is the illusion that you can live against the design of the universe and get away with it!

O Christ, we have been afraid of the splendid sanity of Thy mind, the amazing balance of Thy life—we have been afraid of Life. And now I ask that Thou wilt help me become naturalized in the home-land of my soul—the Kingdom of God, Amen.

'War-Wise' Wives Would Find New War Brings New Problems

"If Jim has to go to war again . . . This is what the wives who sat out the last war are saying to each other these days."

And in almost every case, the sentence is finished by the wife's thinking aloud that this next time she'll do things differently.

If during the last war she lived with his or her parents, this time she means to stay right under her own roof. She knows all about the complications that arise when a daughter or daughter-in-law used to running her own home, moves herself and her children in with grandparents.

If she followed her husband from army camp to army camp, last time, then she is saying, "I wouldn't uproot the children again. I don't believe it's worth while."

For the wife who has moved her children and family possessions to follow the Army, living in makeshift lodgings and never knowing when her husband will get orders to move again, knows all too well how unsatisfactory home life is under those conditions.

Something Different This Time

If she lived alone with her children during the last war, and felt at times that the loneliness was unbearable, she is probably saying, "I believe if I have to go through wit hit again I'll get a job."

And so it goes. Each wife has such vivid memories of the last war that she thinks that if she had to go through it all again she would do things differently.

But the truth of the matter is that there is no happy solution to the problem of a family uprooted by war. It's tough on a woman any way she tries to work it out.

So the lessons that women think they learned during the last war won't do them much good now that they face the problems of another war. They know, perhaps what they WOULDN'T do again, but what they would do would probably not be any more satisfactory.

It's Dead, But it Can't Lie Down

FUNNY FACE

By James Gunn
Copyright 1950 by NEA Service, Inc.

JACK LANNING was good-looking; one of the best looking men I have ever seen. He knew it; he was not vain, he simply accepted the facts.

Lanning had cheerful Irish features, reddish hair, and bright high coloring. He dressed carelessly and well. His face was unlined and his smile was infectious.

Fortunately he had a personality to back it up. He could tell a good story and got along with everyone. Men liked him and he could have married any girl he wanted. A party was made the moment he arrived. People were always telling him he should go on the stage. When we finished college and I went on to law school, he did. The theater was a risk, but he had nothing to worry about financially; his parents had left him a very decent income.

He was not successful. His looks got him plenty of readings and a few parts, but on a stage his personality somehow froze. As an actor he was striking to look at and that was all.

He decided the dramatic stage was not for him, and found a job in an intimate revue. With five other handsome young men, he wore faultless tails, sang patter lyrics pleasantly, and danced a few waltz steps with the star.

He felt he was in the theater, though none of his friends took him seriously. Everyone believed, just when he had and his fling he would settle down to go into business, and make money.

There was always a girl in his life, and she was always beautiful.

Sometimes it was a girl from the theater, sometimes a debutante. I don't think Jack ever broke any hearts, because he made no promises and never made any pretense of being serious. But a lot of girls with a great deal to offer sobbed and swore with frustration because they were not able to get through his cheerful barrier.

THEN he met Eleanor Lane. I had been taken into a law firm by then, and I had not seen him for several weeks. One day he suddenly appeared in my office with a girl.

"This is Ellie," he said. "She has absolutely nothing to recommend her, so it must be love."

Ellie was not in the least like any of the other girls I had seen with Jack. She was small and dark-haired and meager. The clothes hat and tubular clothes of the day did not flatter her. Her dark eyes were as large as her overbalanced face. Her face, and her bones were prominent. Her nose was a little too large and her chin a little too sharp. She was not ugly, not at all; she was laughable. Her face was a haphazard and amiable caricature. Perhaps because of a lopsided smile or a twist of her eyebrow or the way she held her head, her every expression was comic.

Jack laughed at my surprise. "No glamour girl for me. This is my Funny Face," he said, and I thought she blushed a little behind her smile. He put his arm around her. "Baby, take off your glove and show him the ring."

That was 22 years ago, and Ellie was 19.

I TOOK them to dinner that night and tried to draw her out. I wanted Jack's wife to like me and I hoped she was right for him. I found that she came from Indiana, had been a stenographer in an agent's office, and had met Jack a month before. I was amazed to hear that he had proposed unsuccessfully several times before she suddenly agreed.

When he finished describing his courtship, I asked about his plans for the future. "Well, in a couple of months I'm going to leave the revue," he said.

I was relieved. I had often thought that marriage would end his saucy stage career, and I was glad it had come so soon. "And then what will you do?" I asked.

"We're going to make a team," I looked at Ellie, who was staring at her plate. Her back at Jack. I finally found my voice. "What do you mean?"

"Ellie and I. Lanning and Lane. ballroom stuff. She used to do some dancing in school, and I've seen enough to work up a few routines. We won't rush it, we'll take a few months to rehearse."

I could think of nothing to say. It was a mad project. He and Ellie made an odd enough couple at the dinner table, with her absurd little face accentuated by his looks. On a stage the contrast would be laughable.

He pressed me: "Don't you think it's a good idea?"

"No, I don't."

Ellie looked at me quickly. For a second I was afraid she was hurt or angry. But that was not it: a flash of understanding passed between us. She agreed with me. Jack was taken aback at my resistance. "Well, what don't you like about it?"

"There was no way to say tactfully what I really felt. I fell on the next best thing, which was certainly true enough: 'Well, it doesn't seem to me you're really qualified.'"

I could not argue Jack out of the idea. Finally, he laughed. "I told you we were going to take our time. Come and see us in a couple of months."

It was a good deal longer than that before he called and asked me to come to the rehearsal room they had rented.

I found them there in work clothes. Actually, I was surprised at the progress they had made. Jack had worked out some pleasant, completely uninspired routines, which they performed with grace and ease.

If it had not been for Ellie, they would have been a perfectly respectable dance team, competent and dull. Ellie made the routines hilarious. In slinks, with her hair twisted on the top of her head, she contrasted so oddly with the swooning and romantic steps Jack had devised that I had to struggle to keep from laughing.

When they were through, Jack was enthused and she was quiet. It was clear that she had a far better idea of their situation than

In slinks, with her hair twisted on the top of her head, she contrasted so oddly with the swooning and romantic steps Jack had devised that I had to struggle to keep from laughing.

When they were through, Jack was enthused and she was quiet. It was clear that she had a far better idea of their situation than

he. He asked: "Well, what do you think of us? Hasn't Funny Face here turned out swell?"

I saw her flinch again, very slightly. I was sorry for her, and I was embarrassed. I said: "Well, there's no doubt about it, you're a dance team, anyway. Now all you have to do is see if somebody will hire you."

I WAS sure they would not get a job, and I thought it would be the best thing. The sooner Jack got the theater out of his system the better.

They tried out before several agents and managers and got nowhere. In those days vaudeville was still alive in one form or another, and every other bill had a ballroom team on it, usually undistinguished.

Jack could not understand the apathy with which they were greeted. He went to Chicago to look over the situation there and left Ellie in New York. He asked me to take care of her and I saw her a good deal.

I found that I liked Ellie enormously. Most of her shyness disappeared when Jack was not with her, and she did not seem nearly so plain when she was not in contrast with him, like the brown female bird against the brilliant male. She was sweet and intelligent and very honest; her absolute devotion to Jack was a strange mixture of the adoring and the maternal. She knew very well the reasons they were not going to be successful, and one night we had quite a talk about it.

"The funny thing," she said, "is that Jack knows perfectly well I'm ugly."

"You're not ugly in the least."

"You mean I'm not repulsive. Well, I'm the next thing to it. I'm funny looking. I shouldn't be on the stage. I'm bad enough when I have no competition. I shouldn't even be married to Jack. I should have some good, pie-faced husband, and then nobody would say, 'I wonder what he sees in her?'"

"Jack knows 'I'm funny-faced,' he's always talking about it. I wish he wouldn't. Of course, he's good looking and I'm not, there's no use trying to deny it, but that's no reason for him to keep rubbing it in. Jack doesn't mean to be unkind. He just doesn't understand. He's always been the handsomest man around and so popular, he hasn't the faintest idea how it feels to be unattractive. When he calls me 'Funny Face,' it means he loves me, but every time I hear it I shiver up inside."

Acting at Top
Pay To Models

More Than A
Pretty Face Needed
To Make a Hit

By Vivian Brown
AP Newsfeatures Writer
NEW YORK, July 24 —
You need more than pretty face and an abundance of curves to make a hit in the modeling business.

Successful models, the ones with good steady incomes, also have to be pretty good actresses.

Take William Deering's word for that. Deering is head of a model agency (Hartford) so he knows what he's talking about. He says that with the straight modeling business dropping off, many models supplement their incomes by acting on television or on the stage.

Deering anticipated this need when advertisers began cutting their budgets and substituting illustrations in many instances for more costly model photographs.
"Today in my studio," he said,
"I make screen tests of my models on 16 MM film and show the tests to producers interested in hiring them for acting roles. This has enabled many of our girls to get in on the ground floor of video.
They have more experience than other girls applying."

The television girl must have
too tall, and must learn to wear dresses that are in good taste. The average girl who combines television and straight modeling can earn from $400 to $500 a week, compared with the $300 which now is about tops for the best models available, Deering says.

High fashion models usually are too thin for television parts, the agency man explains. They average about five feet, eight inches in height, with a 33-inch bust, 23-inch waist and 33-inch hips.

"Of course," he says, "We still have a large number of girls who do straight fashion modeling, fashion shows and magazine illustrations and derive a good income from it. But on the whole, modeling is not paying as it did during the plush war and early postwar years."

Some girls still command high fees, although there is greater resistance to a $25 or $50 an hour tag on their services. The advertiser may balk, but if the model is worth it, he pays.

A girl who isn't the classic type of beauty that commands these fees can't earn more than about $50 a week at modeling, Deering says. But if she's pretty and has a nice figure, she can enter a whole new field by having her voice trained and learning something about acting.

May Be Months Before A Major Counter Offensive

By Elton C. Fay

WASHINGTON, July 24 (AP)—It may be mid-fall or even next spring before United States forces can launch a major counter-offensive in Korea, a high defense department official said.

The official, who cannot be named, thus cautioned the American people against hoping for a swift victory.

In fact, he said, the public should not be discouraged or alarmed to find another fall-back occurring in the days just ahead. It is, he explained, something that has been figured on, a part of the general pattern of resisting steadily while inflicting on the enemy the heaviest losses possible—a time-gaining maneuver.

Meanwhile the build-up of American strength proceeds. Bigger, hard-hitting tanks are on the way to replace the outgunned, out-classed light tanks which have been mauled by Communist armor.

The tanks on the way are known as medium tanks. Together with stepped-up shipments of the new tank-killer super-bazookas, they are part of the buildup toward the day when a major counter-offensive can be started.

Conjecture Cautious

The predictions that this drive cannot begin for some months, at least, do not take account of the possibility that the North Koreans—the winners of almost every battle so far—might collapse suddenly for internal or other reasons. They do represent the cautious calculations of American military leaders, based on the effort they think will be needed if the Red forces continue to fight.

In the current stage of fighting, which finds the Americans on the defensive, the next major holding point is along the ridges about 30 miles below the Kum River. This quite possibly is intended as the final position beyond which there should be no retreat.

During the last week the Reds punched through the Kum river defenses, paused a while before the temporary southern capital at Taejeon, then surged forward again and took the city.

Actually, there are some indications that the Americans held on the Kum river line a week longer than military planners had expected.

The high officials declared that at no time, from the hour when the Communists jumped off for the invasion of the republic of Korea, has there been any split in thinking by the high military planners here.

Plan Was Revised

Plans have changed from time to time, he said, because the Korean picture and the original estimates of what could be done have changed. At the outset, there was agreement on the plan to use only naval and air action, with the hope this would give the South Korean ground forces enough support to repel the Communist invaders. It soon became obvious this was not enough and the decision to send in a division from the four in Japan under General MacArthur's command was reached.

This initial ground aid plan, like the original air-naval plan, had to be revised. Elements of the 1st and 25th divisions were sent ashore north of Pusan in an amphibious operation near the week's end. Meanwhile, help was started from the United States. At least a part of the 1st Marine division, with its own air support, steamed out of the west coast, ready for quick action when they reached the Far East. The Army's 2nd division started getting itself together to sail, together with smaller units from other Army divisions.

The tanks that Gen. MacArthur had to send to Korea when the Russian-made T-34 tanks began to spearhead the drive of the Red forces were only the light tanks, the 35-ton jobs. They mounted the same caliber gun as the Red's T-34s, 76 millimeters, but the velocity of the Red's gun was much higher and the armor much better.

What was needed, it was apparent, were medium tanks—45-tonners with high-velocity 90 millimeter guns, wider treads to enable them to operate on bad roads and improved transmission-steering facilities.

MacArthur's command had a few of these mediums, but they hadn't been used and weren't ready. The reason his Japanese occupation forces had not used them in Japan was that Japanese bridges generally cannot carry the weight.

With the tanks and bazookas, more land mines are being headed for the Korean front. Land mines are used by a retreating enemy's advance. They do not seem to have been used to any great extent up to now by the American and South Korean forces.

As explained here, the probable reasons are two:

1. They are heavy, bulky items and couldn't be flown into Korea in large quantities, but had to move by sea transport.

2. A mine field must be protected to some degree by the troops it guards. If it isn't the enemy steals out at night and digs up the mines. The Americans and South Koreans probably haven't had enough force to protect mine fields—if they had the mines.

Curios Hobby Of Kellaway

British Actor Has An Exceptionally Big Collection

By Howard C. Heyn

HOLLYWOOD, July 24 (AP)—British Actor Cecil Kellaway has to find a larger home, or a warehouse, for his growing collection of motion picture curios.

The whole thing started in 1932, when Kellaway won the derby hat once worn by Charlie Chaplin. He held the lucky raffle ticket at a fund-raising charity bazaar.

"I hung that hat on a peg in my front hall," he related, "and then, as a gag for visitors, I typed a label containing the derby's history. I framed this legend and tacked it on the wall next to the hatbox."

"A week later a friend of mine who got a laugh out of my one-item museum brought me a set of false whiskers worn by John Barrymore in some long-forgotten melodrama. So, with a hat and a beard, I was in business."

Some Historical
His curios collection now numbers several hundred articles, many of them interesting to movie historians. There are, for instance, the leopard skin loin cloth worn by Elmo Lincoln as the original Tarzan, and a pair of Harold Lloyd's famous lenseless spectacles.

Kellaway has a Klansman's robe, an Arab head dress worn by Valentino and a gold-plated cigarette holder sported by "Butterfly Man" Lew Cody. Technical items include a 1939 camera, a film splicer used by D. W. Griffith and a microphone used in the first movie with sound.

His newest acquisition is one of

$7,000,000 For Israel's Roads

TEL AVIV, Israel — (AP) — Israel plans to spend $7,000,000 this year for the maintenance of 1,280 miles of existing roads and the building of 70 miles of new highways.

E. Aronov, director of the public works department of the ministry of labor, said road work had supplied jobs for 3,500 workers in May alone.

What a stepper!
Just hint to the gas pedal and she steps out like no other low-priced car. And that's true whether you're driving a Ford V-8 or "Six". But this high-stepper is a low stepper when it comes to costs. You can own a V-8, for example, for 50 cents less than most "Sixes"—and a Ford "Six" for even less.

What a stopper!
This '50 Ford actually helps you apply the brakes. They're 35% easier-acting King-Sure Brakes that use car momentum to help you stop. Like Ford's extra-rugged "Lifeguard" Body, they give you the kind of protection you'd expect only of costliest cars. And for added safety and comfort, you ride low and level in the "Mid Ship" section of the car, between the wheels—not over them. You're cradled in comfort on "Hydra-Coil" front springs and "Para-Flex" rear springs that give a road-bugging smooth-ness truly amazing.

What a looker!
Yes, again in '50, Ford received the Fashion Academy Gold Medal as "Fashion Car of the Year." And Ford's very good looking because "their baked-on finish is "made to live outdoors." That means high resale value which, together with Ford's low running costs, puts Ford further out front as America's savingest car.

'50 FORD
And what a saver—all the way!

Meeting at Reams Home On July 28

Stress on Balanced Farming to be In Its Operation

Pettis County's Annual Balanced Farming meeting at Tom Reams' home on the afternoon of July 28th will provide a good opportunity for folks to see the operation of and some of the results of being a member of a Balanced Farming Association.

Probably most "eye-catching" is the new ranch-style farm home which combines beauty and convenience. The beauty speaks for itself. Conveniences of special note include the handy kitchen, built on garage and having the windows of both the kitchen and master bedroom opening on to the court of farm buildings. That way a fire at night or an accident during the day is quickly seen from the home.

Two Area Garden

Both the Reams and their near neighbors, the James A. Harveys, have been making good use of a two area garden. The Harveys plow under a green manure crop on one half their garden and have their garden on the other half. The Reams have separate areas, one on each side of the house. They generally seed oats on one area early in the spring. About the time the oats are well headed, they are covered with manure, plowed under, and the area seeded to soybeans. The beans are usually also covered with manure and plowed under when they have made maximum growth in late summer.

Mr. Ream says the garden is getting easier to work each year with very few weeds and very little cultivation needed.

New Building Arrangement

The new machine shed and farm scales were located to fit a future farm court though the lot fences have not yet been changed to include this shed. When the new fencing arrangement is complete, Tom can get to any building without having to go through a lot containing livestock.

Doing Good Job With Hogs And Cattle

Though regular rotation pastures are not yet available for the Ream hogs, Mr. Ream is careful to graze his pigs on clean pasture each year. He is also following the Extension Service recommendation of ear-marking his pigs and selecting his replacement gilts from the best litters. Records kept on his 1948 spring pig crop showed 2 litters each weighing 2490 pounds at six months of age. One contained 12 pigs and one eleven. Of 90 pigs farrowed that spring in 10 litters, he raised 86 pigs.

The Reams keep a registered Angus herd of about 40 cows and generally have a near 100 percent calf crop though the calves start coming in January. The cows are wintered economically too getting only lespedeza, alfalfa and red clover hay and some straw.

Six 30 Acre Fields

When the farm is completely terraced, most field boundaries except those along the outside of the farm will be on the contour. There will be six 30 acre fields. The rotation will include 60 acres of small grain and lespedeza, 60 acres of small grain and sweet clover and 60 acres of corn after sweet clover.

There will be about 100 acres in 3 permanent pastures part of which will also be cut for hay. Mr. Ream has been quite successful in maintaining a stand in a small field of alfalfa and that will be continued.

Sold On Soil Tests And Heavy Fertilizer Applications

The Reams have made good use of Pettis County's new soil testing laboratory and have followed recommendations in applying the amounts of fertilizer indicated by those tests. Would you be interested in the results they have obtained? A 30 acre field of the new Vigo wheat just harvested yielded 31½ bushels per acre. The same field in 1948 yielded 75 bushels of fertilized oats. The check strip with no treatment made only 48 bushels. One 40 acre field has yielded over 60 bushels per acre the last three times it was in corn including 1948 and each year it has been a little better than the previous one.

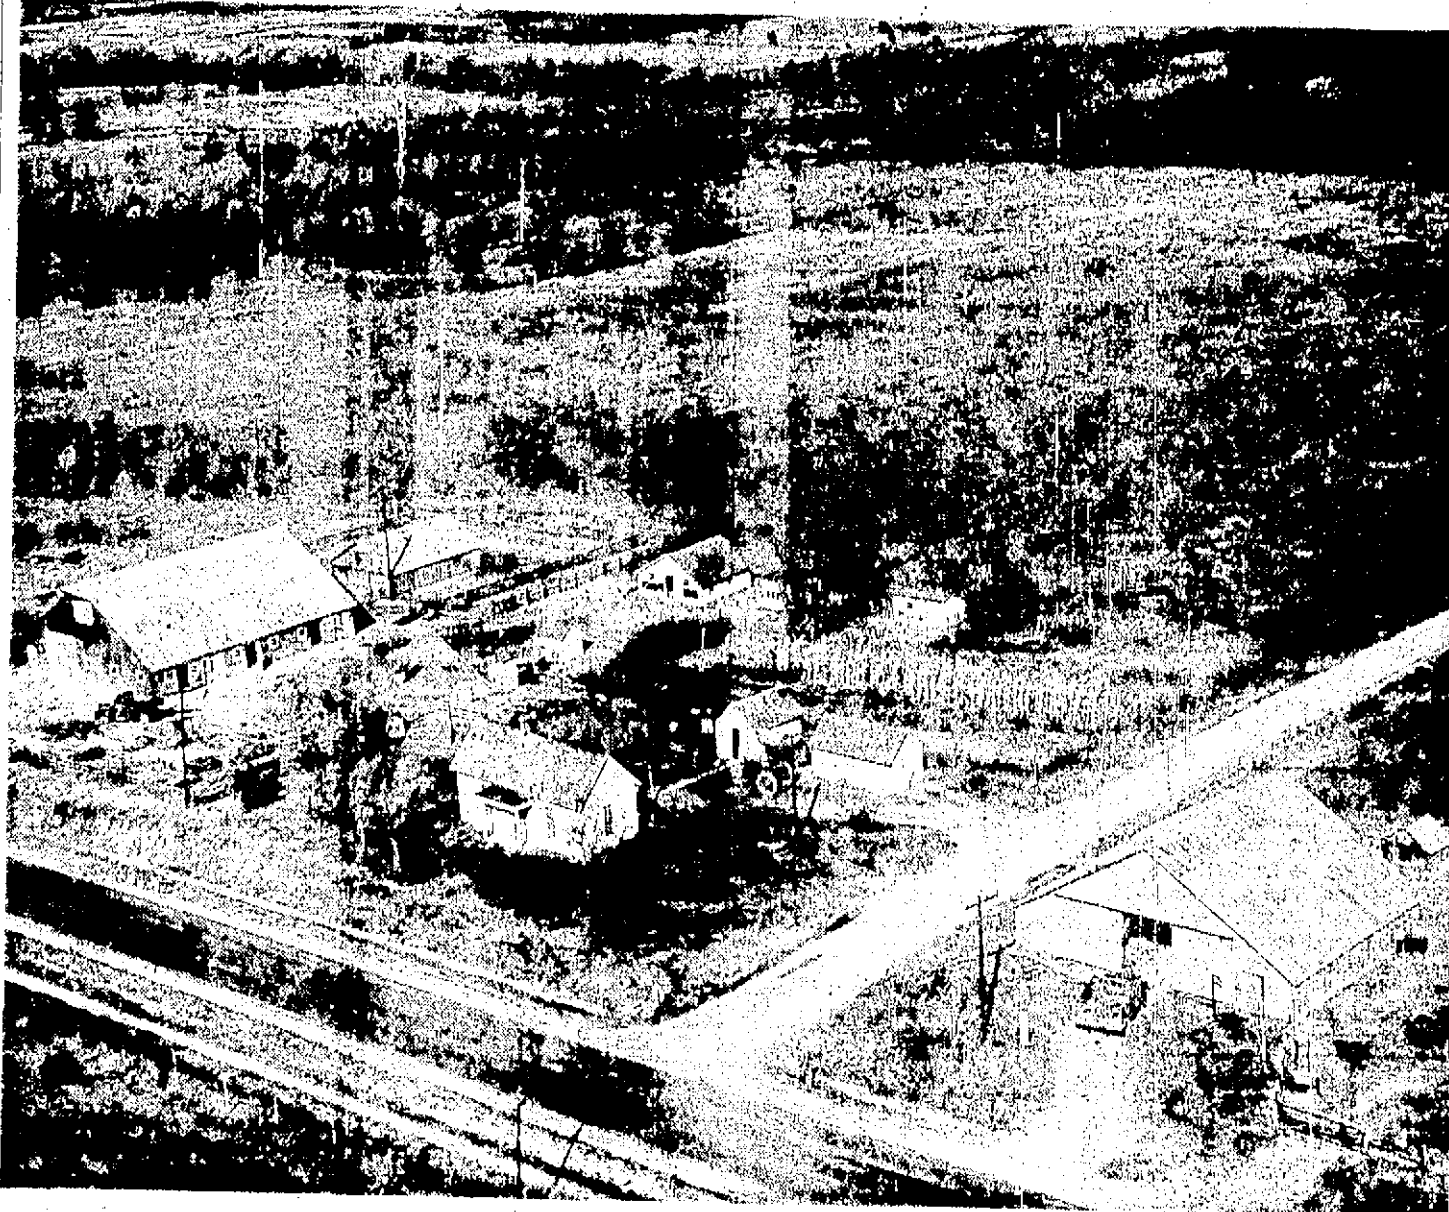

Tries Anhydrous Ammonia Fertilizer

Mr. Ream is adding something new in fertilizer this year in that he is trying out anhydrous (liquid) ammonia on some late corn. Some of this same material will be applied the afternoon of the meeting to some permanent pasture that is being renovated. This material contains 82.5 pounds of nitrogen per 100 pounds of material while ammonium nitrate has only 33 pounds.

Seven Outlets built and Sixty-Five Acre sTerraed

Seven of the 16 outlets needed on the farm have been built since the fall of 1947 when the Reams joined the Balanced Farming Association and between 60 and 70 acres have been terraced. Part of this work has been done with farm machinery but much has been done with contract equipment.

Mystery Farm Pictures in Central Missouri---

Whose farm is it?

Occupants of the above farm home may have wondered this spring about a plane buzzing low over their buildings. The picture explains it. The airplane pilot by the Sedalia Democrat-Capital didn't know whose farm it was. They couldn't take pictures of all the farms but they got as many good shots as possible during the light time.

So about once a week hereafter, until the pictures run out, they are to be presented each Monday in the Democrat and in Tuesday morning's Capital.

Conservation Under the APC

More Abundant Production to Farms in County

Less land down the river and more land in better condition for a continued abundant production. That sums up the accomplishment of the 1949 Agricultural Conservation Program, according to the Pettis County PMA Committee.

1217 Pettis county farmers carried out soil and water conservation practices under the 1949 ACP. These farmers operated 60% of the farmland in the county. A gross payment in the amount of $1,103,393.75 was made to these farmers to assist them in carrying out the soil building and conserving practices on their farms for the ultimate production of better food for all people and the protection of the soil for continued production in the years to come.

Under the 1949 ACP these farmers constructed 19 miles of sod waterways to provide a suitable outlet for terraces to be constructed on their fields at a later time.

Protect Large Acreage

A little more than 82 miles of standard terraces were constructed on 99 of these farms last year where suitable outlets had had already been provided. Nearly 12 miles of diversion terraces were constructed with sod waterways in diverting water to a natural water course. The county committee estimates these terraces will protect and benefit 2,200 acres by slowing down runoff water at times of heavy rainfall, and prevent erosion and loss of plant food therefrom.

Thirty-four farm ponds were constructed to provide water for livestock on additional pastureland on as many farms. It was estimated by the county committee that these 24 ponds will serve 1,600 acres of grazing land and will at the same time tend to slow down the drainage from excessive rains.

In an effort to rebuild the soil and increase its productive capacity and the food value of grains produced, these farmers used 37,473 tons agricultural limestone, 212 tons rock phosphate, and applied 1,463 tons commercial fertilizers to legumes or grasses. They also seeded 4,275 acres sweet clover as a means of providing green growth to restore organic matter to the soil and in 1949 plowed under 2,204 acres of second year sweet clover.

Pastures Seeded

On forty different farms, 249 acres of permanent pasture were seeded with the recommended pasture mixture of grasses and legumes after a thorough seedbed preparation and heavy application of limestone and fertilizers.

The committee points out that the assistance provided under the Agricultural Conservation Program has provided the most effective and efficient means of getting essential conservation work done on the land of individual farmers. The share of the cost provided under ACP represents the public interest in conservation of soil and water resources.

The committee says the Agricultural Conservation Program is available to all farmers and that there is an elected farmer-committee in every agricultural county and community in the country. Under this type of farmer administration and with assistance on individual farms, the nation's farmers cooperating in the program have constructed more than 800 thousand miles of terraces; built 174 miles west of Sedalia on the some 900 thousand stockwater dam; used 240 million acres of green manure and cover crops to restore humus and organic matter to the soil; seeded 45 million acres of range and pasture land to grass and legumes; applied 235 million tons of lime; spread 20 million tons of phosphate.

Dairy Judging Meeting July 26

Pettis County 4-H club members enrolled in dairy projects will have an opportunity to receive training in dairy judging this coming Wednesday, July 28th. This training meeting is to be held on a district basis with 11 counties participating. M. Pat Regan, Extension Dairy Specialist from the University of Missouri, will be in charge of the meeting.

The meeting will start at 9 a.m. at the Guy T. Yeater farm located 1 1/2 miles west of Sedalia on the Main Street Road. Holstein cattle will be judged at the Yeater farm. Other farms to be visited during the day are the Schobohm-Hall farm where the group will judge Guernseys and the Paul Reed farm where classes of Jerseys will be judged.

Two Year Plan By The County Farm Bureau

This Is Offered In Association In Balanced Farming

Starting this fall, Pettis County farmers and land owners will have the opportunity of joining the Pettis County Balanced Farming Association for two years at a total cost of $85.00. The membership charge the past two years has been $75.00 annually.

This means that new members will receive two years help for only a little more than one year previously. And the second year of this two years will be cheaper than the first. This is the first year will cost $50.00 and the second year $35.00.

The plan is to sign up new members for two years but only to charge for the first year ($50.00). The rest of the fee ($35.00) will be due at the start of the second year.

Now, what about members that have been in the Association for one or more years previously? They will be eligible to come in at the second year rate of $35.00.

Of course the question arises as to how the rates can be cut so drastically (nearly 50%). The answer is by having more members. If 40 new members are signed at $50.00 each and 40 old members at $35.00 each, a budget similar to previous years will be available.

This goes to mean that with more members, less time can be spent with each and that more teaching and assistance will need to be given through group meetings.

Prospective members in the past have sometimes said "I can not accomplish enough in one year to justify paying $75.00." With this new set up, plans started the first year can be completed the second and in the two year period, considerable work can also be done toward getting the plan in gear.

Further information can be obtained at the County Extension Office. The plan will also be discussed at the Balanced Farming meeting at Tom Reams Friday afternoon July 28th.

Contractors Invited To Demonstrate

Members of the Missouri Terracing and Conservation Contractors Association who are doing work in Pettis County, are being invited to demonstrate their terracing equipment at Tom Reams, July 28th. They include Ed Vaughn, Knob Noser, Joe Knipp, Tipson and Jim Bahner, Jack Fischer and Arnold Fischer of Sedalia.

attending should bring their own lunches.

Stock Judging At 4-H Meeting

The county 4-H Livestock Judging Training Meeting for all 4-H livestock project members and leaders will be held Wednesday, August 2, according to Bryan Phifer, Assistant County Agent. The meeting will start at 8:30 a.m. at the Charles Arnold farm, 3 miles west of Hughesville, where classes of swine and sheep will be judged. Other farms to be visited are those of Walter Nicholson, where beef cattle will be judged and the Leonard DeBord farm where the group will judge additional swine classes.

During the day 4-H club members and leaders will have the opportunity to receive judging training under the direction of Sam Rowe, Extension Animal Husbandman from the University of Missouri, who will assist the agents in conducting this meeting.

This training meeting will be beneficial to 4-H club members and leaders alike. Training will be given in both judging and giving reasons. The ability to discern being good and poor quality and type in livestock is an asset to anyone interested in livestock.

As the Pettis County 4-H Livestock Judging team will be selected from those participating in this meeting, all livestock project members should plan on taking part. Everyone attending should bring their own lunch.

Further Aggression Might Bring World War III

ultimatum. Surely such a sweeping commitment must depend on developments.

One certainty is that we are committed to defend Greece against Red aggression. That much is inevitable. But who can foresee where the Greek upheaval might lead? It is possible that it might be confined to the Balkans. Probably that would depend on what sort of game Moscow played.

Not Be Aggressor

Judging from past performances Russia would duplicate her Korean performance in any Balkan upheaval. She would set the stage, equip her satellites militarily, and then push Bulgaria into the fray as the champion of Communism. Moscow herself would keep clear of the shooting. She wouldn't be the aggressor—not she.

Well, now, anybody can see with half an eye that another world war could grow out of such a situation. But it hasn't grown out of the North Korean aggression as yet, and North Korea is a Red stooge.

The way things look now, any Balkan aggression would likely be after the style of the Korean assault. It would be another step in the general Bolshevik program of whittling the United States and her allies down militarily and economically by making them fight costly engagements in widely separated theatres.

Every additional commitment that America is forced to take on places her under further economic strain. That in turn is calculated to weaken her ability to meet her commitments for defense of the Western world.

It long has been obvious that such a weakening process is the heart of Russian strategy. If Russia had greater economic and military strength, she might cut corners by calling for a world show-down right now. As things stand, she wouldn't be likely to strike until she feels sure of victory in a sack.

But if Russia's operations are such an open-and-shut game, why don't the Western allies call the turn now? That's a question a lot of people are asking these days, as Moscow keeps pouring or the heat.

The answer is that your Uncle Sam is a long-suffering guy who hates war. However, he will take only so much punishment, and when he is forced into action he strikes hard. Moreover he is equipped to strike mighty fast.

President Truman has stated the case bluntly enough. But circumstances at the time alone can determine whether Communist aggression in the Balkans or elsewhere is the game for another world war.

Both Sedalia Clubs See Action Tonight In Semi-Pro Meet

Sedalia Merchants Vs. Springfield at 8 p. m., Cubs Play Versailles at 10 p. m.

The baseball games tonight will see both Sedalia ball clubs in action, the opening game at 8:00 o'clock the "Whiz Kids" Sedalia Merchants will take to the diamond against the Generals of Springfield. In the second game which starts at 10:00 o'clock the Sedalia Cubs will meet the Versailles Merchants.

Both Sedalia clubs go into their games tonight undefeated so far in the tournament. The "Whiz Kids" having defeated the Versailles Merchants, while the Cubs have defeated the Knob Noster Merchants and the Belton Braves. The Knob Noster team was eliminated.

Missouri Semi-Pro Tournament Scores

| (Saturday Night) | |
|---|---|
| Barford Chevrolet, St. Louis, 9; Jefferson City Dodgers 1. | Belton Braves 8; Warsaw Merchants 1. |
| (Sunday) | |
| Slater Merchants 15; Warsaw Merchants 4 (Warsaw eliminated). | Ace of Clubs, Independence 5; Knob Noster Merchants 3 (Knob Noster eliminated). |
| Holcomb Cardinals 3; Grandview Merchants 0. | Patton Creameries, Springfield 3; Cape Girardeau Capahans 2. |
| Barford Chevrolet, St. Louis 9; Lawson Hybrids 0 (Lawson eliminated). | Sedalia Cubs 5; Belton Braves 1. |

Imhauser to Pitch

Cal Rodgers, this morning, announced for certain he was sending Joe Imhauser to the mound against the Generals. Local fans are confident Imhauser will be able to handle the visitors from Green County. Carl Barbour will take over the duties behind the plate for the Kids.

Jack Alpert manager of the Cubs hasn't fully decided on his mound hurler for tonight. Alpert is waiting on the Merchants to ascertain who will pitch for that team. He is anxious to win tonight which will throw his team to a game possibly next Saturday or Sunday.

The final games Saturday night proved out to be one-sided affairs with the Barford Chevrolet, St. Louis, beating the Jefferson City Dodgers (Negro team) 9 to 1 while the Belton Braves stopped the Warsaw VFW 8 to 1. Both games were called at the end of the seventh in accordance with the seven-run lead rule.

Only bad game was experienced on the Sunday schedule, while there were two shutouts, but the games as a whole were entertaining and well played.

The Slater Merchants came through to eliminate the Warsaw VFW in the early morning contest Slater won 15-4.

Knob Noster Merchants fell to the wayside in the second game when the Ace of Clubs of Independence came through to overcome a two-run lead of the Knob Noster team and win in nine innings 5-3.

Holcombs Defeat Two

The defending champions, Holcomb Cardinals, are playing up to their championship form. The Cardinals eliminated the Grandview Athletic Club by defeating them 3-0 in a nine inning game. The Cardinals also defeated the Ace of Clubs 8-1.

The Capahans of Cape Girardeau bowed to the Patton Creameries of Springfield in the thirteenth game of the tournament, 2-5 in a nine inning game. Errors were costly to the Capahans. Patton's boat Lawson in a Saturday game.

Barford Chevrolet of St. Louis made themselves a favorite for the tournament championship in their Sunday game when they stopped the Lawson Hybrids 9-0 in a seven inning game. Lawson through the loss was eliminated from the tournament.

Cubs Came Through

The Sedalia Cubs, jumped into a one-run lead in the last game Sunday night over the Belton Braves, and finally at the conclusion of nine innings came through with a 5-1 victory. The Braves tied the game up in the ninth inning, and the Cubs took back the lead in the fifth by a lone run scored in that inning. Three runs scored through a ninth inning rally put the game on ice.

The Cubs are being sponsored in the tournament by Cramer and Schrader Construction Co., Pacific Cafe, E. W. Thompson Chevrolet Motor Co. and B. A. Fisher.

The "Whiz Kids" composed of a group of youngsters who have been playing league ball all summer are sponsored by approximately 125 Merchants of the city and are playing as the Sedalia Merchants.

Phils Jump Ahead of The Cardinals

Redbirds Defeat Boston Braves by 8 to 4 Score

By Ralph Roden
Associated Press Sports Writer

The Philadelphia Redbirds jumped ahead of the St. Louis Cardinals in the National League standings today by defeating the Boston Braves 8 to 4.

Sawyer, who brought his young charges home to surprise third last season, said in the spring that he would settle for a mediocre year.

At the moment it appears that the Phils will better their 1949 record. In many quarters the Phils are looked upon as the next National League champions.

The lowly 12th in the circuit is the immediate opponent of Carl Stephens, 21-year-old star outfielder, for a bout of only with the National League. Stephens leaves July 29 for a 14-day tour at Indianapolis, Ind.

During that time the Phils are at home for 17 games. Stephens recorded his 13th victory yesterday as the Phils edged out the Cincinnati Reds in a doubleheader and earned a 1-0 lead in the first game.

The $65,000 bonus bounty turned back the Reds, 12-4, in the second. The Phils took the second, 7-4, behind Russ Meyer and Jim Konstanty.

Lefty Al Brazier, who helped the Phils from Harry Brecheen, stopped the Braves on 12 hits. He was a sure winner. The Cards secured a Bob Chapman and Bucky Walters. The Cards now have a 1-0 lead in the first game.

The loss dumped the Braves from third to fourth place with the Brooklyn Dodgers moving up to second. The Cardinals, who were in first place, dropped to fifth.

Sheldon Jones knocked out in the first inning, but the Phils, who were in first place, dropped to fifth. The Cardinals, who were in first place, dropped to fifth.
